

Whenever I try and check the accessibility of my website with the other color schemes, it resets my colors to default (white). All the color changing does is make the background a light gray and a light pink. The text on the page is still very readable even with the color changes.

The error with the tables basically says I shouldn't have a list inside of a list. I have this because of the last assignment

Fixing these errors was not taught to us. Also the background color error is inconsistent as it marks certain points as not having enough color contrast while ignoring other parts with the same colors.
