My expectations in A1 were quite low regarding what I would be able to make by the end of the semester. I was pleasantly surprised by how much we got through and how quickly we went through it. The site doesn't really match my wireframe for my website in A1 but that's because I didn't really know how much we'd learn nor how we'd use it. I think I will be able to use it for personal use in the future. I will however need to do some touch-ups like changing colors, making the form work (allowing the info to be sent to me by future employers), and adding a few pages with more detail. Aside from these small changes, I'd keep the website largely the same as it is.
